Landesbibliothek Oldenburg

Digitalisierung von Drucken

Vermischte Aufsätze in englischer Prose

Ebeling, Christoph Daniel
Hamburg, 1777

VD18 13177109

Capt. Lemuel Gulliver's Voyage To Liliput.

urn:nbn:de:gbv:45:1-15506

272 CAPT. LEMUEL GULLIVER'S VOYAGE

narch by excommunicated heretics and an execrable usurper: But they a last discovered, that all the calamities of the Spaniards had proceeded from their allowing the infidel Moors to live among them.

CAPT. LEMUEL GULLIVER'S VOYAGE TO LILIPUT. *)

We fet fail from Bristol, May 4th, 1699, and our voyage at first was very prosperous.

It would not be proper, for some reasons, to trouble the reader with the particulars of our adventures in those feas: let it suffice to inform him, that, in our passage from thence to the East-Indies, we were driven by a violent storm to the north-west of Van Diemen's land. By an observation we found ourselves in the latitude of 30 degrees 2 minutes fouth. Twelve of our crew were dead by immoderate labour; and ill food; the rest were in a very weak condition. On the fifth of November, which was the beginning of fummer in those parts, the weather being very hazy, the seamen spied a rock within half a cable's length of the thip; but the wind was fo strong, that we were driven directly upon it, and immediately iplit. Six of the crew, of whom I was one, having let down the boat into the fea, made a shift to get clear of the thip and the rock. We rowed by my computation about three leagues, till we were able to work no longer, being already spent with labour while we were in the ship. We therefore trusted ourselves to the mercy of the waves, and in about half an hour the boat was overfet by a fudden flurry from the north. What became of my companions in the boat, as well as of those who escaped on the rock, or were left in the vessel, I cannot tell; but conclude they were all loft. For my own part, I Iwam as fortune directed me, and was puthed forward by wind and tide. I often let my legs drop, and could feel no bottom: but when I was almost gone, and able to struggle no longer, I found myself within my depth: and by this time the ftorm was much abated. . The declivity was so small, that I walked near a mile before I got to the thore, which I conjectured was about eight o'clock in the evening. I then advanced forward near half a mile, but could not discover any figns of houses or inhabitants; at least I was in so weak a condition, that I did not observe them. I was extremely tired, and with that, and the heat of the weather, and about half a pint of brandy that I drank as I left the ship, I found myfelf much inclined to sleep. I lay down on the grass, which was very short and fost, where I slept founder than ever I remembered to have done in my life, and, as I reckoned, about nine hours; for when I awaked, it was just daylight. I attempted to rise, but was not able to stir: for as I happened to lie on my back, I found my arms and legs were strongly fastened on each side to the ground; and my hair, which was long and thick, tied down in the same manner. I likewise felt several flender ligatures across my body, from my arm-pits to my thighs. I could only look upwards, the sun began to grow hot, and the light offended my eyes. I heard a confused noise about me, but in the posture I lay, could see nothing except the fky. In a little time I felt something alive moving on my left leg, which advancing gently forward over my breast came, almost up to my chin; when bending my eyes downward as much as I could, I perceived it to be a human creature not fix inches high, with a bow and arrow in his hands, and a quiver at his back. In the mean time, I felt at least forty more of the fame kind (as I conjectured) following the first. I was in the utmost astonishment, and roared so loud, that they all ran back in a fright; and some of them, as I was afterwards told, were hurt with the falls they got by leaping from my sides upon the ground. However, they foon returned, and one of them, who ventured fo far as to get a full fight of my face, lifting up his hands and eyes by way of admiration, cried out in a shrill but distinct voice, hekinah degul: the others repeated the same vords several times, but I then knew not what they meant I lay all this while, as the reader may believe, in great uneafiness; at length, struggling to get loofe, I had the fortune to break the strings, and wrench out the pegs that fastened my left arm to the ground; for, by lifting it up to my face, I discovered the methods they had taken to bind me, and at the same time with a violent pull, which gave me excessive pain, I a little loosened the strings that tied down my hair on the left side, so that I was just able to turn my head about two inches. But the creatures ran of a second time, before I could seize them; whereupon there was a great shout in a very shrill accent, and after it ceased, I heard one of them cry aloud, tolgo phonac; when in an instant I felt above an hundred arrows discharged on my left hand, which pricked me like so many needles; and besides, they shot another flight into the air, as we do bombs in Europe. where of many, I suppose, fell on my body, (though I felt them not) and fome on my face, which I immediately covered with my left hand. When this shower of arrows was over, Ifell a groaning with grief and pain, and then striving again to get loofe, they discharged another volley larger than the first, and some of them attempted with spears tostick me in the fides; but by good luck I had on me a buff jerkin, which they could not pierce. I thought it the most prudent method to lie still, and my design was to continue so till night, when, my left hand being already loofe, I could eafily free myfelf: and as for the inhabitants, I had reason to believe I might be a match for the greatest army they could bring against me, if they were all of the same size with him, that I saw. But fortune disposed otherways of me. When the people observed I was quiet, they discharged no more arrows: but, by the noise I heard, I knew their numbers increased; and about four yards from me, over-against my right ear, I heard a knocking for above an hour, like that of people at work; when turning my head that way, as well as the pegs and strings would permit me, I faw a stage erected about a foot and a half from the ground, capable of holding four of the inhabitants, with two or three ladders to mount it: from whence one of them, who seemed to be a person of quality, made me a long speech, whereof I understood not one fyllable. But I should have mentioned, that before the principal person began his cration, he cried out three times, langro dehul fan; (these words and the former were afterwards repeated and explained to me). Whereupon immediately about fifty of he inhabitants came and cut the strings that fastened the left fide of my head, which gave me the liberty of urning it to the right, and of observing the person and gesture of him that was to speak. He appeared to be of a middle age, and taller than any of the other three who attended him, whereof one was a page that held up his train, and seemed to be somewhat longer than my middle finger; the other two stood one on each side to support him. He afted every part of an orator, and I could observe many periods of threatenings, and others of promifes, pity, and kindness. I answered in a few words, but in the most submissive manner, listing up my left hand and both my eyes to the fun, as calling him for a witness; and being almost famished with hunger, having not eaten a morfel for some hours before I left the ship, I found the demands of nature fo strong upon me, that I could not forbear shewing my impatience (perhaps against the strict rules of decency) by putting my finger frequently to my mouth, to fignify that I wanted food. The hurgo (for fo they call a great lord, as I afterwards learnt) understood me very well. He descended from the stage, and commanded that several ladders should be applied to my fides, on which above an hundred of the inhabitants mounted, and walked towards my mouth, laden with balkets full of meat, which had been provided and fent thither by the king's orders, upon the first intelligence he received of me. I observed there was the sleih of several animals, but could not diftinguish them by the tafte. There were shoulders, legs, and loins, shaped like those of mutton, and very well dreffed, but smaller than the wings of a lark. I earthem by two or three at a mouthful, and took three loaves at a time about the bigness of musket bullets. They supplied me as fast as they could, Thewing a thousand marks of wonder and astonishment at my bulk and appetite. I then made another sign, that I wanted drink. They found by my eating, that a small quantity would not suffice me, and being a most ingenious' people, they flung up with great dexterity one of their largest hogsheads, then rolled it towards my hand, and beat out the top, I drank it off at a draught, which I might well do, for it did not hold half a pint, and tafted like a small wine of Burgundy, but much more delicious. They brought me a second hogshead, which I drank in the same manner, and made signs for more; but they had none to give me. When I had performed thefe wonders, they shouted for joy, and danced upon my breaft, repeating several times as they did at first, hekinah degul. They made me a fign that I should throw down the two hogsheads, but first warning the people below to stand out of the way, crying aloud, borach mevola, and when they faw the vessels in the air, there was an universal shout of hekinah degul. I confess, I was often tempted, while they were passing backwards and forwards on my body, to feize forty or fifty of the first that came in my reach, and dash them against the ground. But the remembrance of what I had felt, which probably might not be the worst they could do, and the promise of honour I made them, for to I interpreted my submissive behaviour, foon drove out these imaginations. Besides, I now considered myself as bound by the laws of hospitality to a people, who had treated me with fo much expence and magnificence. However, in my thoughts I could not sufficiently wonder at the intrepidity of these diminutive mortals, who durst venture to mount and walk upon my body, while one of my hands was at liberty, without trembling at the very fight of fo prodigious a creature, as I must appear to them. After some time, when they observed that I made no more demands for meat, there appeared before me a person of high rank from his imperial majesty. His excellency, having mounted on the small of my right leg, advanced forwards up to my face, with about a dozen of his retinue. And producing his credentials under the fignet royal, which he applied close to my eyes, spoke about ten minutes without any figns of anger, but with a kind of determinate resolution; often pointing forwards, which, as I afterwards found, was towards the capital city, about half a mile distant, whither it was agreed by his majesly in council that I must be conveyed. I answered in few words, but to no purpose, and made a fign with my hand that was loofe, putting it to the other (but over his excellency's head for fear of hurting him or histrain) and then to my own head and body, to fignify that I defired my liberty. It appeared that he understood me well enough, for he thook his head by way of disapprobation and held his hand in a posture to thew, that I must be carried as a prisoner. However, he made other signs to let me understand, that I should have meat and drink enough, and very good treatment. Whereupon I once more thought of attempting to break my bonds, but again, when I felt te smart of their arrows upon my face and hands, which were all in blifters, and many of the darts still sticking in them, and observing likewise that the number of my enemies increased, I gave tokens to let them know, that they might do with me what they pleased. Upon this the hurgo and his train withdrew with much civility and chearful countenances. Soon after I heard a general shout, with frequent repetitions of the words, peplom felan, and I felt great numbers of people on my left fide relaxing the cords to fuch a degree, that I was able to turn upon my right, and to ease myself with making water; which I very plentifully did, to the great astonishment of the people, who conjecturing, by my motion, what I was going to do, immediately opened to the right and left on that side, to avoid the torrent which fell with such noise and violence from me. But before this, they had daubed my face and both my hands with a fort of ointment very pleasant to the smell, which in a few minutes removed all the smart of their arrows. These circumstances, added to the refreshment I had received by their victuals and drink, which were very nourishing, disposed me to sleep. I slept about eight hours, as I was afterwards assured; and it was no wonder, for the physicians, by the emperor's order, had mingled a sleepy potion in the hogsheads of wine.

*) The Works of Dr. Jonathan Swift. Lond. 1765. 12 Vol. 12.

276 CAPT. LEMUEL GULLIVER'S VOYAGE

It seems that, upon the first moment I was discovered sleeping on the ground after my landing, the emperor had early notice of it by an express; and determined in council, that I should be tied in the manner I have related, (which was done in the night while I slept) that plenty of meat and drink should be sent to me, and a machine prepared to carry me to the capital city.

This refolution perhaps may appear very bold and dangerous, and I am confident would not be imitated by any prince in Europe on the like occasion; however, in my opinion, it was extremely prudent, as well as generous: for supposing these people had endeavoured to kill me with their spears and arrows while I was asleep, I should certainly have awaked with the first sense of smart, which might so far have rouzed my rage and strength, as to have enabled me to break the strings wherewith I was tied; after which, as they were not able to make resistance, so they could expect no mercy.

These people are most excellent mathematicians, and arrived to a great perfection in mechanicks by the countenance and encouragement of the emperor, who is a renowned patron of learning. This prince has several machines fixed on wheels for the carriage of trees and other great weights. He often builds his largest men of war, whereof some are nine feet long, in the woods where the timber grows, and has them carried on these engines three or four hundred yards to the sea. Five hundred carpenters and engineers were immediately set at work to prepare the greatest engine they had. It was a frame of wood raised three inches from the ground, about seven feet long and four wide, moving upon twenty-two wheels. The shout I heard was upon the arrival of this engine, which it feems fet out in four hours after my landing. It was brought parallel to me, as I lay. But the principal difficulty was to raise and place me in this vehicle. Eighty poles, each of one foot high, were erected for this purpose, and very strong cords of the bigness of pack thread were fastened by hooks to many bandages, which the workmen had girt round my neck, my hands, my body, and my legs. Nine hundred of the strongest men were employed to draw up these cords by many pullies fastened on the poles, and thus, in less than three hours, I was raised and slung into the engine, and there tied fast. All this I was told, for, while the whole operation was performing, I lay in a profound fleep by the force of that foporiterous medicine intuled into my liquor. Fifteen hundred of the emperor's largest horses, each about four inches and an half high, were employed to draw me towards the metropolis, which, as I faid; was half a mile distant. About four hours after we began our journey, Iawaked by a very ridiculous accident; for the carriage being ftopt a while to adjust something that was out of order, two or three of the young natives had the curiofity to fee how I looked when I was afleep; they climbed up, into the engine; and advancing very foftly to my face, one of them, an officer in the guards, put the tharp end of his half-pike a good way up into my left nottril, which tickled my nose like a straw, and made me sneeze violently: whereupon they stole off unperceived, and it was three weeks before I knew the cause of my awaking fo fuddenly. We made a long march the remaining part of the day, and rested at night with five hundred guards on each fide of me, half with torches, and half with bows and arrows, ready tho shoot me, if I should offer to ftir. The next morning at fun-rise we continued our march, and arrived within two hundred yards of the city-gates about noon. The emperor, and all his court, came out to meet us, but his great officers would by no means suffer his majesty to endanger his person by mounting on my body.

278 CAPT. LEMUEL GULLIVER'S VOYAGE

At the place where the carriage stopt, there stood an ancient temple, esteemed to be the largest in the whole kingdom, which, having been polluted some years before by an unnatural murder, was according to the zeal of those people looked upon as prophane, and therefore had been applied to common use, and all the ornaments and furniture carried away. In this edifice it was determined I should lodge. The great gate fronting to the north was about four feet high, and almost twoo feet wide, through which I could easily creep. On each fide of the gate was a small window, not above fix inches from the ground:into that on the left fide the king's smith conveyed fourfcore and eleven chains, like those that hang to a lady's watch in Europe, and almost as large, which were locked to my left leg with fix and thirty padlocks. Overagainst this temple, on the other side of the great highway, at twenty feet distance, there was a turret at least five feet high. Here the emperor ascended with many principal lords of his court to have an opportunity of viewing me, as I was told, for I could not fee them. It was reckoned that above an hundred thousand inhabitants came out of the town upon the same errand; and in spite of my guards, I believe, there could not be fewer than ten thousand at several times, who mounted my body by the help of ladders. But a proclamation was foon iffued to forbid it on pain of death. When the Workmen found it was impossible for me to break loose, they cut all the strings that bound me; whereupon I rose up with as melancholy a disposition as ever I had in my life. But the noise and astonishment of the people at feeing me rife and walk are not to be expressed. The chains, that held my left leg; were about two yards long, and gave me not only the liberty of walking backwards and forwards in a semicircle; but, being fixed within four inches of the gate, allowed me to creep in, and lie at my full length in the temple.

CAPT. GULLIVERS ADVENTURES AT THE COURT OF THE KING OF BROBDIGNAC.*)

It is the custom, that every Wednesday (which, as I have before observed, is their Sabbath) the king and queen, with the royal issue of both sexes, dine together in the apartment of his majesty, to whom I was now become a great savourite; and as these times my little chair and table were placed at his lest hand before one of the salt-cellars. This prince took a pleasure in conversing with me, enquiring into the manners, religion, laws, government, and learning of Europe; where in I gave him the best account I was able. His apprehension was so clear, and his judgment so exact, that he made very wife reflections and observations upon all I said. But I confess, that after I had been a little too copious in talking of my own beloved country, of our trade, and wars by fea and land, of our schisms in religion, and parties in the state; the prejudices of his education prevailed so far, that he could not forbear taking me up in his right hand, and stroaking me gently with the other, after an hearty ht of laughing, asked me, whether I was a whig or tory? Then turning to his first minister, who waited behind him with a white staff near as tall as the mainmast of the royal-sovereign, he observed how contemptible a thing was human grandeur, which could be mimicked by fuch diminutive infects as I: and yet, fays he, I dare engage, these creatures have their titles and distinction of honour, they contrive little nests and burrows, that they call houses and cities; they make a figure in dress and equipage; they love, they fight, they dispute, they cheat, they betray. And thus he continued on. while my colour came and went feveral times with indignation to hear our noble country, the mistress of arts and arms, the scourge of France, the arbitress of Europe, the seat of virtue, piety, honour, and truth, the pride and envy of the world, so contemptuously treated.

*) Swift's Works Vol. II.

280 CAPT. GULLIVERS ADVENTURES AT THE

But as I was not in a condition to refent injuries, so upon mature thoughts I began to doubt whether I was injured or no. For, after having been accustomed several months to the fight and converse of this people, and observed every object upon which I cast mine eyes to be of proportionable magnitude, the horror I had at first conceived from their bulk and aspect, was so far worn off, that if I had then beheld a company of English lords and ladies in their finery, and birthday cloaths, acting their several parts in the most courtly manner of strutting, and bowing, and prating; to fay the truth, I thould have been strongly tempted to laugh as much at them, as the king and his grandees did at me. Neither indeed could I forbear smiling at myself, when the queen used to place me upon her hand towards a looking glass, by which both our persons appeared before me in full view together; and there could be nothing more ridiculous than the comparison: so that I really began to imagine myfelf dwindled many degrees below my ufual fize.

Nothing

COURT OF THE KING OF BROBDIGNAC. 281

Nothing angered and mortified me fo much as the queen's dwarf, who being of the lowest stature that was ever in that country (for I verily think he was not full thirty feet high) became so insolent at seeing a creature fo much beneath him, that he would always affect to fwagger and look big as he paffed by me in the queen's anti-chamber, while I was standing on some table talking with the lords or ladies of the court, and he feldom failed of a smart word or two upon my littleness; against which I could only revenge myself by calling him brother, challenging him to wrestle, and such repartees as are usual in the mouths of court pages. One day, at dinner, this malicious little cubb was fo nettled with fomethig I had faid to him, that, raising himfelt upon the frame of her majesty's chair, he took me up by the middle, as I was sitting down, not thinking any harm, and let me drop into a large filver bowl of cream, and then ran away as fast as he could. I fell over head and ears, and, if I had not been a good swimmer, it might have gone very hard with me; for Ghimdalclitch in that instant happened to be at the other end of the room, and the queen was in such a fright, that the wanted presence of mind to assist me. But my little nurse ran to my relief, and took me out, after I had swallowed above a quart of cream. I was put to bed; however I received no other damage than the loss of a suit of cloaths, which was utterly spoiled. The dwarf was foundly whipped, and as a farther punishment forced to drink up the bowl of cream, into which he had thrown me: neither was he ever restored to favour: for soon after the queen bestowed him on a lady of high quality, fo that I faw him no more, to my very great satisfaction; for I could not tell to what extremity fuch a malicious urchin might have carried his refentment.

He had before ferved me a scurvy trick, which set the queen a laughing, although at the same time she was heartily vexed, and would have immediately cashiered him, if I had not been so generous as to intercede. Her majesty had taken a marow-bone upon her plate; and, after knocking out the marrow, placed the bone again in the dish erect, as it stood before; the dwarf watching his opportunity, while Glumdalclitch was gone to the side-board, mounted the stool that she stood on to take care of me at meals, took me up in both hands, and squeesing my legs together, wedged them into the marrow-bone, above my waift, where I stuck for some time, and made a very ridiculous figure. I believe it was near a minute before any one knew what was become of me; for I thought it below me to cry out. But, as princes seldom get their meat hot, my legs were not scalded, only my stockings and breeches in a sad condition. The dwarf, at my intreaty, had no other punishment than a found whipping.

282 CAPT. GULLIVERS ADVENTURES AT THE

I was frequently rallied by the queen upon account of my fearfulness; and she used to ask me, whether the people of my country were as great cowards as myself? The occasion was this: the kingdom is much pestered With flies in summer; and these odious insects, each of them as big as a Dunstable lark, hardly gave me any rest while I fat at dinner with their continual humming and buzzing about mine ears. They would fometimes alight upon my victuals, and leave their loathfome excrement or spawn behind, which to me was very visible, though not to the natives of that country, whose large optics were not so acute as mine in viewing smaller objects. Sometimes they would fix upon my nose or forehead, where they stung me to the quick, smelling very offenfively; and I could easily trace that viscous matter, which, our naturalists tell us, enables those creatures to walk with their feet upwards upon a cieling. I had much ado to defend myself against these detestable animals, and could not forbear starting when they came on my face. It was the common practice of the dwarf to catch a number of these in his hand, as schoolboys do among us, and let them out fuddenly under my nose, on purpose to frighten me, and divert the queen. My remedy was to cut them in pieces with my knife, as they flew in the air, wherein my dexterity was much admired.

I remember, one morning, when Glumdalclitch had set me in my box upon a window, as she usually did in fair days to give me air (for I durst not venture to let the box be hung on a nail out of the window, as we do with cages in England) after I had lifted up one of my salhes, and sat down at my table to eat a piece of sweet cake for my breakfast, above twenty wasps, allured by the smell, came slying into the room, humming louder than the drones of as many bag-pipes. Some of them seized my cake, and carried it piece-meal away; others slew about my head and sace, confounding me with the noise, and putting me in the utmost terror of their stings.

However

Works W-

COURT OF THE KING OF BROBDIGNAC. 283

However I had the courage to rife and draw my hanger, and attack them in the air. I dispatched four of them, but the rest got away, and I presently shut my window. These insects were as large as patridges; I took out their stings, found them an inch and a half long, and as sharp as needles.

SOME ACCOUNT OF ENGLAND'S TRADE AND COLONIES.

Before England had foreign Colonies and Factories, our general Commerce was comparatively inconfiderable. The great bulk of our Exportations confifted of our Woollen Drapery, Lead, and Tin; in the Times, more especially, before France had struck into the Woollen Manufacture, and Holland but very little; and that Florence and Venice were chiefly confined to the supplying the Countries within the Mediterranean therewith. So that, in effect, we enjoyed almost a Monopoly of that Manufacture for the West and North Parts of Europe before the Year 1640; Spain and Portugal being then almost intirely supplied by us with light Draperies, as well for their home Confumtion, as for that of their extensive Colonies; from whence, in Return, we were, in those Days, supplied with the Sugars, Tobacco, Drugs &c. which we now have from our own Plantations, For this Reason, our old commercial Writers are almost wholly taken up with the Importance of our Wool and Woollen Manufactures, which, with our Tin, Lead, Leather, Coals, and some other smaller Articles, were all we pretended to call our staple Commodities.

With respect to our Importations, Venice sirst, and Lisbon next, supplied us with the Merchandize of East-India &c. — The Hanse-Towns with naval Stores, Copper, Iron, Linen, and even with the best of our Shipping. — Germany also, with Linen, Tin-plates, and Hardware, even so low as to Nails themselves. — France supplied us, in great Abundance, with Silks, Linen, Wines, Brandies, Paper, Toys, and Frippery. How happy then is the Change in our National Circumstances, since we have had American Plantations, the Demand from whence, of all Kinds of Merchandize, having so

*) A. Anderson's Historical and Chronological Deduction of the Origin of Commerce from the earliest account the the present Time. Lond. 1764. 2 Vol. fol.